KIRBY SMITH'S SURBENDER-THE FINISHING STROKE TO THE REBELLION -We stated on Sat. urday, that we had reason to know that a despatch from the South, dated the 26th, had gode to Washington, announcing the conclusion of negotiations for the surrender of Kirby Smith and his Trans-Mississippi command, and we added that we believed the annunciation to be true. And it was true. Among the despatches given to day, the following will be found:

WAR DEPARTMENT, WASHINGTON, May 3, 1865. To Major General Disc:
A despatch from General Canby, dated New Orleans, New 26th, states that arrangements for the currender of the Confederate torces in the Trans-Miceiscippi Department have been con-cluded. They include the men and material of the army and navy.

E. M. STANTON, Secretary of War

The whole nation may well read this with deep and enthusiastic joy. To be sure, no one has doubted that the armies of the Union would sweep away all resistance beyond the Mississippi, yet much apprehension has been felt that Smith and Magruder, the latter a desperado. might, if so disposed, make a formidable stand and render necessary the sacrifice of thousands of lives and the utter devastation of a fertile and beautiful region constituting no small portion of the wealth of the country. That painful ap prehension, however, has proved groundless there's no longer a rebel army upon the conti nent. Smith's was the last, and there will never be another. There may be, for onths to come, some maranding here and there, there may be in some places frequent robberies upon the highway and robberies of houses for even a year or two, but the perietra tors of such crimes must, when caught, be inng ust as they would have been for similar crim before the rebellion. We have the elements of this party and we think they are in process of consulidation, of assuming shape and consistency, and of becomng such a power as will rapidly push our noble State into the front ranks of the most prospeous commonwealth of the West.

Kentucky needs her forces organized and concentrated, in order to the development of er natural resources, and the promotion of er moral and material prosperity.

B t manifestly this is impossible so long as her attention is distracted by the great politicosocial question of slavery. Until this is forever set at rest, it will engross a large share of pub. c attention. The press and candidates for office must necessarily make it a leading, if not the all engrossing topic of public discussion. And through this channel has come a large por tion of the evile that have afflicted the Southern States and kept them from the proper dev_1 q ment of their inexhaustible resources. To mental pabulum of the South has been politics ime for anything clse, and hardly any disposition er anything else; and the everlasting nigger has been the sum and substance of politics Demagogues couldn't afford to talk of anything Nothing else paid them so we for the slender capital they had to invest in the work of agitation. On that subject they were alwa s were of a hearing; and if they were found to be sound' on it, it mattered little what the might be good for, or how well or how poorly qualified they were to promote the public good, which was of small moment to them if they ould only secure their own personal aggrandisement and keep in office, which they managed tenerally to do. There was always a struggle be the soundest on the question. Other obaportance - agriculture, manufactures, the mechanic arts, education, inventions improvemente, etc.—received comparatively little attention. The powers of the General Governme State rights, the right to take negroes into the ries or elsewhere were the dishes served up in various shapes and degrees of elegance and in almost endless succession at every political feast. It not unfrequently happened that some of the people so elaborately addressed upon the mysteries and metaphysics of govern-ment and State rights on such occasions couldn't read, and if the speeches had been erented to their eyes instead of care never ould have "reckoned" what they were abor Nor had they any means of making their chil iren any more intelligent than themselves. Did the demagogues give such a subject more Very far from it. It was cometimes dicrous to see men who didn't own the first sinmp of a darkey listening gravely by the hour to an exposition of their rights to take their niggers into Kansas, while they were obliged to send fifty or perhaps a hundred miles to buy a pair of shoes or a hat or shirt or a hoe or a plon made in Massachusetts, and which could just as well have been made in their own States and
